SYNOPSIS

Inger Tobiasen is currently nominated for one of the prestigious prizes at the*28. Biennale of Illustrations Bratislava* for her artwork in the Fanni's Colours series. She writes with great empathy and in complete sync with the child's imagination about the little girl, Fanni, and her imaginary adventures. There are 10 books in the series, each themed with a different colour and each with a number from 1-10 on the cover. The stories as such are not about the numbers and colours, but are more concerned with the creativity and imagination of the child at play.

REVIEWS

"A reader reported that her 5-year-old child suffers from high-functioning autism. This is the first time he has read a book in its entirety and read 5 titles at a time. Our editor felt sincerely happy. Thank you very much for your creativity and work. Somewhere in the world, there is a child who is happy because of reading your series. it is a very remarkable achievement." – Note to the author from her Chinese publisher (Beijing Yutian Hanfeng Book Co., Ltd.)
